Red Lodge Pizza Co. started with a crazy idea (and a little urging from friends) at a pizza party back in 1996. Turns out the recently graduated philosophy major and PE teacher knew how to make hand-tossed pizza with made-from-scratch dough and fresh ingredients from their community, and a sauce that received rave reviews from friends and family!

Tom and Eliza Kuntz began searching for a location to start their first-ever business venture and settled on the town's old post office. While the couple waited for the building to be vacated for their use, they began brainstorming a fun theme based around the postal community, including ideas from the then-popular TV sitcom CHEERS! (take a peek closely at the names...you'll recognize a few). The old post office went to the wayside in their business plan when the Natali's café was offered for sale.

The Kuntz's bought this historic building you're sitting in today, mixed the made-from-scratch dough, hand-tossed it into pizza crusts, topped them with fresh ingredients, cooked them on pizza stones, and opened the doors of the newly established Red Lodge Pizza Co. With a logo created by a high school friend and college buddies as the only employees...the rest is history!
